From Our Nutritionist

Sea Moss and Irish Moss are both rich in minerals and antioxidants, but the main difference is that Irish Moss refers to a specific species of moss, while Sea Moss includes several different species. Both are available in various forms, including capsules, powder, refrigerated gels, and dried for use in teas. The gels are often blended with ingredients like ginger and turmeric, burdock and bladderwrack, or black seed oil. Both Sea Moss and Irish Moss are beneficial for the thyroid due to their iodine content, as well as for the immune system and digestive tract, thanks to their soothing emollients. They help detoxify the body and are considered superfoods. Additionally, they are free from gluten, dairy, and soy, with no fillers, artificial flavors, or coloring.

Sea Moss and Irish Moss are available in various brands, including Feel Rite, Mary Ruth's, Natural Renewals Gels, and Ocean Balance dried moss for tea. If you're taking thyroid medication, it's important to consult your doctor, as their high iodine content can impact thyroid function.
